Terms and conditions

- Media passes are limited and accreditation is at the discretion of the Splashy Fen organisers.
- Preference will be given to media that support Splashy Fen with pre-event coverage.
- Freelance journalists and photographers will only be considered for accreditation if they represent or have been commissioned by a specific publication or media channel.
- Articles, reviews and photographs taken at Splashy Fen are to be used solely in the medium for which you are applying for accreditation. They may not be sold or given freely to any other media (including websites, blogs and social networking sites) without the organisers' written permission. The same applies to film and video footage shot at the festival.
- Photographers and film crews may not be intrusive, invade anyone's privacy, or use lighting or equipment that could interfere with any of the performances.
- The organisers reserve the right to withdraw photography or filming privileges at any time, or to restrict access to specific areas.
- The organisers also reserve the right to request copies of photographs and footage shot at the festival, at no cost.
- A media centre will be available on site, offering hospitality, restrooms and power points for battery chargers and laptops.
- Media passes are not transferable and successful applicants will need to submit their identity numbers to the organisers before 16 March 2010.

Should my request for media accreditation be successful, I agree to abide by the above terms and conditions.
